Another Segment Opened For River-Lake Highway

Traffic was rolling over a new 3.5-mile segment of the Lake Erie - Ohio River Highway today after a ribbon - cutting ceremony Thursday afternoon that marked the opening of the latest area link in the limited access facility.

State, county and city officials joined in the 25-minute program along with representatives of the East Liverpool Area Chamber of Commerce and the Lake Erie-Ohio-River Highway Association.

The newest segment of the highway stretches from Route 267, near Apples Corners, to a junction with present U.S. Route 30 near West Point. It was built at a cost of $3,698,935 by the Carl M. Geupel Construction Co. of Worthington and Indianapolis under contract with the Ohio Highway Department.

FOUR MEN joined in snipping the bright red ribbon to allow traffic to flow over the new segment. They were Thomas Major, director of plans and programming at the highway department's central office in Columbus; Levi (Jack) Kimble, head of the Division 11 office in New Philadelphia; Francis H. Lang, chairman of the Chamber's highway committee and charter president of the Lake Erie - Ohio River Highway Association, and E. R. Chandler, executive manager of the Chamber and vice president of the highway association.

The visiting officials and the spectators then drove in a caravan over the new highway stretch, doubling back into the inbound lanes at West Point.

It was the fourth area segment of the lake - river road to be opened to traffic. The four-lane highway now extends nearly 10 miles in the East Liverpool area — from W. 3rd and Monroe Sts. to West Point.

IN BRIEF remarks, Major said the overall cost of the lake-river highway will be $100 million. The newest segment represents an investment of about $1.1 million per mile, he added. The completed highway will stretch 93 miles, connecting Ohio River docks at East Liverpool with the Lake Erie port at Ashtabula. Several other segments of the highway are under construction. Only three sections remain to be placed under contract, Major said.

Major recalled that he helped snip a ribbon in August 1967 for opening of the segment of the highway immediately to the south.

"I hope to come back here every year and a half and cut another ribbon," he remarked.

Huge Troop Pullout Nixon's Hope In '70

May Exceed Clifford Bid Of 100,000

Sets 2 To 3 Months In Efforts To Bank Inflationary Fires

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon says he holds out hope for massive troop withdrawals from Vietnam by the end of 1970 and that his efforts to bank the nation's inflationary fires will start having an effect within two or three months.

Nixon, in a wideranging, 32-minute news conference Thursday, also touched on the outcome of municipal elections in New York City, his missile defense system and who ordered a wiretap of Dr. Luther King's telephone.

But Vietnam was Topic A of his first nationally televised and broadcast meeting with newsmen April 18.

Asked about a proposal by former Democratic Secretary of Defense Clark Clifford that 100,000 U.S. combat troops be pulled out of Vietnam by the end of the year, and that all combat ground forces withdraw by the end of 1970, Nixon said:

"As far as how many will be withdrawn by the end of this year, or the end of next year, I would hope that we could beat Mr. Clifford's timetable . . ."

At the June 8 Midway summit meeting between Nixon and South Vietnamese President Nguyen Van Thieu, an initial plan to pull out 25,000 Americans later this summer.

"We will withdraw more," Nixon told his news conference, promising another review of the situation in August.

When asked to assess the troubled economy, the chief executive said actions taken by his administration "will begin to have effect within a matter of two to three months" in cooling off the inflation spiral. But he addd, rather ominously:

"If our projection proves to be wrong, then we will have to look to other courses of action, because we cannot allow prices to continue to go up, interest to go up, and hte other factors . . . to continue."

He did not elaborate but Secrtitary of the Treasury David M. Kennedy suggested last week that wage-price controls might be sought should the situation get out of hand, although the Whie House said there are no plans for such action at this time.

Asked for his reading of victories by generally conservative candidates for mayor of Los Angeles and Minneapolis, and similar upsets by conservative forces in both the Republican and Democratic primaries for mayor of New York, Nixon jabbed at his Adam's apple and said:

"This is the message that comes through rather loud and clear from these elections: the American people in our cities, in our small towns, and in this country are fed up to here with violence and lawlessness and they want candidates who will take a strong stand against it. I think that is the message for he candidates in the future."

While saying the people are voting against lawlessness, the President declared:

"I do not believe the great majority of the American people in our cities are anti-Negro. I do not believe they are anti-poor or antiwelfare, or reaction-

Drama Unfolds In Pittsburgh

Sniper On Bridge Wounds Self After Shooting Spree

PITTSBURGH (AP) — While his mother helplessly watched the drama on television, a young vocational school student calmly stood atop a downtown bridge shooting at police Thursday and then ended his spree by critically wounding himself in the head.

Robert Michniak, 22, described by his mother as quiet, withdrawn and an often nervous loner, climbed nearly 100 feet to the top of the span. After firing four shots into the air, he trained his pistol on the ground.

For 75 minutes, as police crouched in doorways and behind cars and armored trucks and hundreds of spectators stood behind barricades three blocks away, Michniak almost defiantly held his perch.

THE sniper, wearing black trousers and a white shirt, walked calmly back and forth along a steel beam on the bridge that crosses the Allegheny River into the fringe of the business district.

Stopping at random, Michniak whipped the small caliber pistol from his side and fired quick bursts of two, four and as many as six shots.

Police, under orders not to return the fire, said Michniak fired a total of 45 rounds. At least 20 of them ripped into empty patrol cars and police vans.

The only person injured was a policeman who was hit in the hand by a bullet fragment. Officers said the wound was minor.

At one point, Michniak appeared ready to leave his perch. He walked about 30 feet down a beam leading to the ground, stood there for a few minutes and then climbed back up.

—:—

A SHORT time later, he stood in the middle of the span, pointed the gun to his head, fired and slumped out of sight behind the bridge's ironwork.

6 U.S. Boats Shot At, Seized Near Ecuador

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP) — Six American tuna fish boats were shot at and seized by a patrol boat from Ecuador early today for allegedly violating Ecuador's territorial waters, the American Tunaboat Association said.

The Ecuadorian patrol boat fired without warning, the captain of one fishing boat, Julius Alioto of San Diego, told the tunaboat association, which is headquartered here.

No injuries were reported. The six American vessels were boarded and guards were posted, said Edward Silva, secretary of the association.

Nixon Says RFK Okayed King Wiretap

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon says he "checked personally" and found that Robert F. Kennedy as attorney general did authorize FBI wiretapping of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr.'s telephone.

Nixon interjected himself into the growing dispute over the tapping of the slain civil rights leader's phone at his Thursday news confernece when he came down in support of FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover, who claims Kennedy not only authorized the King surveilance, but originated the idea.

But the two men who succeeded Kennedy as attorney general accused Hoover and the FBI of making unfair attacks on the two slain men.

The controversy over the wiretapping took on a new dimension when The Washington Evening Star reported in a copyright story Thursday that Hoover had disclosed contents of two memorandums, one saying Kennedy had expressed concern about reports that King was a student of Marxism and was associating with a New York man with known Communist connections.

Courtney Evans, then assistant director for the FBI and liaison man with the Justice Department, wrote the memorandum to Hoover in June 1963.

Attack Made North Of Tay Ninh City

72 Enemy Troops Killed In Assault On U.S. Base

SAIGON (AP) — More than 500 North Vietnamese soldiers stormed a U.S. artillery base 15 miles north of Tay Ninh City early today and American headquarters said, "An undetermined number penetrated the perimeter but were repulsed."

The attack was reported a few hours after military spokesmen said a massive enemy drive against Tay Ninh City had "fizzled."

Spokesmen said 72 enemy troops were killed in the assault. U.S. casualties were seven killed and 18 wounded.

It raised to 475 the number of North Vietnamese and Viet Cong reported killed in fierce fighting around Tay Ninh city since early Thursday. Total U.S. casualties in the past 24 hours were put at 15 killed and 48 wounded, while South Vietnamese casualties were 14 killed and more than 20 wounded.

Tay Ninh City is a key provincial capital near the Cambodian border, 50 miles northwest of Saigon. Spokesmen said the North Vietnamese force attacked Firebase Ike, 15 miles to the north, shortly after midnight, charging behind rockets and mortar fire that pinned down the 150 defenders U.S. 1st Air Cavalry Division soldiers.

The Americans fought back with rifles and machinge guns while helicopter gunships and artillery pounded the attackers. The North Vietnamese withdrew after 75 minutes of close quartersfighting.

While the battle raged, two waves of B52 bombers dumped 360 tons of explosives on North Vietnamese troop concentrations just north of Firebase Ike in the northern half of Tay Ninh province. Spokesmen said the strikes were aimed at smashing North Vietnamese reserve troops.

That 'Good Old Time' Will Start Saturday

Summer, with its "lazy, hazy days," will begin officially at 9:55 a.m. Saturday at the moment of summer solstice when the sun is farthest north of the celestial equator.

The solstice brings the longest day of the year and the shortest night.

As to the weather itself, it will be cloudy and cooler tonight and Saturday, with some chance of showers.

Sunday will be mostly cloudy and mild with a chance of showers.

Of special interest to skywatchers is the fact that the planet Mars will be seen Saturday night at 10 as a very bright reddish object high in the southeastern sky. Mars is now closer to the earth than it has been for nearly 13 years.

Reminder Given Swimming Aides

Don Eckert, water safety committee chairman of the East Liverpool Red Cross chapter, has announced that swimming instructors are certified by the Red Cross under its national water safety program and that it is compulsory for the instructors to be retrained by Dec. 31 under the revised swimming and lifesaving materials to retain their authorizations.

Certified instructors who are not retrained will be ineligible to conduct certified Red Cross swimming courses after 1969, Eckert pointed out. Retraining sessions require a 10-hour course under an instructor trainer from a Red Cross chapter.

The DOCTOR Says

Don't Climb Mountain In Storm

When the weather near sea level is hot and sticky, many per[illegible] get a [illegible] by taking to the hills or climbing trails.

It is not wise to hike in mountainous country if a storm is threatening because at high altitudes, even in summer, the rocks may become coated with a freezing rain. Furthermore, the wind may be colder and stronger than you had bargained for.

If a storm does arise while you are climbing a mountain, you should seek shelter because to fight the elements may prove quickly exhausting. Above all, never climb alone. Let others know where you plan to go and when they can expect you back.

—:—

ALWAYS ALLOW enough time to make the return trip in daylight. In strange terrain good visibility is essential. When climbing, you should test each handhold and foothold before you give it your full weight.

No matter how inviting it looks, don't drink clear, sparkling water from mountain brooks or springs unless you have been assured of its safety by a reliable authority.

Be sure to carry a compass and a first-aid kit. The latter should include sterile bandages, adhesive tape, burn ointment, aromatic spirits of ammonia, an elastic tourniquet, scissors, calamine lotion and, unless you are an expert, a first-aid manual.

A—Infection can enter the inner ear (labyrinthitis) as a complication of a middle ear infection (otitis media) or as a result of a fistula caused by an injury or operation on the ear. Antibiotics are used to treat the infection unless it is caused by a virus (measles or influenza). Many victims, however, are left with an incurable dizziness and some loss of hearing.

Q.—I AM TAKING Choloxin. What is it given for? Can it be safely taken for a prolonged period?

A—This drug is given for thyroid deficiency or to reduce the cholesterol level of the blood. It should not be taken by persons with organic heart disease, high blood pressure, liver or kidney disease or by women who are pregnant or nursing. It should be taken only under careful medical supervision.

Please send your questions and comments to Wayne G. Brandstadt, M.D., in care of The Review. While Dr. Brandstadt cannot answer individual letters, he will answer letters of general interest in future columns.

Board Gives Description Of Brown Recluse Spider

The East Liverpool Health Board has issued a detailed description to help district residents identify the brown recluse spider, which burst into the news a few weeks ago when various persons in Ohio and other nearby states claimed they had been bitten by the insect.

Using information relayed from the State Health Department at Columbus, Health Commissioner Jack Bonner said the spider's body is about a half-inch long. It has three pairs of eyes arranged along the front margin of the head. The adult spider, with legs extended, may cover an area about the size of a half dollar.

Two of the five species of the genus have a fiddle - shaped marking darker than the surrounding area. The base of the fiddle is at the front of the body, with the neck extending toward the abdomen. The body color ranges from light tan through deep chocolate brown and becomes pallid when preserved in alcohol.

BONNER SAID the best control for spiders around the home is good sanitation, preferably the use of a vacuum cleaner in hard-to-reach places. The contents of the sweeper should be burned or treated with insecticide, he said. If chemical control is desired, 2 per cent chlordane may be applied as a coarse spray or with a paint brush around cracks and crevices in the foundation, along walls, window sills and door jambs.

If a person feels he has been bitten by a brown recluse, he should consult his family physician immediately, taking along the insect which inflicted the bite, Bonner said. He emphasized that many species of spiders inflict bites which produce little or no after effects.

Medical literature shows 126 documented cases of bites by the brown recluse in the U.S. since 1957, Bonner said.

Under Ohio's weather conditions, the brown recluse must live in a heated building to withstand winter temperatures, Bonner said. The spiders prefer to remain in seclusion in areas of the home that are seldom disturbed, such as closets, spaces behind and under furniture, attics and out-of-the-way places in cellars.

BONNER emphasized only three colonies of the brown recluse have been found in Ohio to date, and none was associated with biting a human. He said there is no evidence to indicate the brown recluse is widely distributed in Ohio.

The Ohio Health Department and Ohio State University have agreed to identify any spiders which are submitted, Bonner said. Specimens should be placed in a vial of rubbing alcohol, tightly stoppered and labeled with the location where they were found and the name and address of the sender.

Specimens may be sent to: Ohio Department of Health, 942 W. 3rd Ave., Columbus 43212, or Department of Entomology, Ohio State University, 1735 Neil Ave., Columbus 43210.

Cool It With Pesticides

The list of states deciding to play it cautious with the pesticide DDT is growing.

Arizona, one of the first states to recognize the potential pesticide danger, has banned the use of DDT for a year while studies are conducted on the relationship between the compound and the balance of nature.

IN CALIFORNIA, after July 1 it will be illegal to use DDT and related pesticides in homes and gardens. Agricultural use of DDT in dust form also will be prohibited.

Rhode Island is looking for a safe substitute and plans to ban DDT as soon as one is found.

After rejecting Mexican cantaloupes and dumping milk because of excessive DDT content, Texas has formed a special committee to investigate the whole pesticide problem.

In selling up the investigative panel, the Texas legislature said one of the aims is to "direct attention toward the possible contamination of the waters in the state, toxicity to humans from foodstuffs treated with DDT, harmful or fatal effects on the wildlife of Texas and other environmental hazards which might be attributable to DDT or similar chemical derivatives."

Other states that are working toward banning the use of DDT or have written laws restricting iits use in some manner include: New York, Connecticut, West Virginia and Maryland.

Five Midwestern states have joined in a project to test pesticide levels in Lake Michigan fish.

PROOF IS AVAILABLE that the cumulative nature of pesticides of the DDT family causes large enough concentrations in birds and fish to inhibit reproduction.

The extent of DDT's harmful effect on man still is under study but many health and wildlife experts agree that the risks are too dangerous to take lightly.

Dr. Leslie L. Glasgow, assistant secretary of the interior, says, "It is time to replace DDT with less hazardous pesticides." We heartily agree.

Timely Probe

Public and congressional cries for a review of the U.S. chemical and biological warfare program have been heeded by the Nixon administration.

President Nixon has ordered the review by the Arms Control and Disarmament Agency, the State Department and the Defense Department.

The always present danger was brought to attention last year when escaping nerve gas killed 6,000 sheep near an Army testing site in Utah.

Plans to ship obsolete—but potentially deadly —chemical bombs by rail to ports where they could be taken out to sea to be dumped have been postponed by the Army.

Chemical and biological warfare policy should be as open and above board as the nation's nuclear policy because it is equally as sinister.

The upcoming review and subseqent congressional inquiry will shed some much needed light on the controversial issue.

New York Goes Conservative

Mayor Lindsay still is in the race due to his nomination on the Liberal party ticket but without GOP support he is in trouble.

THE LIBERAL MAYOR'S image and record caused his defeat at the hands of John J. Marchi, an obsecure state senator and also the Conservative party nominee.

In the Democratic party primary race, the victor was City Comptroller Mario A. Procaccino who didn't wear a "law-and-order" tag, but was the most conservative candidate in a five-man field.

The Procaccino victory reflects the general trend among voters toward conservatism.

The swing to the right already has shown up in Los Angeles where Mayor Sam Yorty won re-election over Negro councilman Thomas Gradley and in the Minneapolis mayor race where a former police detective emerged victorious after a campaign based on the theme of "law and order."

Mayor Lindsay attributed his defeat to "forces of reaction and backlash" stemming from a mood of hostility in his city and the nation. He optimistically predicted the return of a "mood of reason" before the November election.

ROBERT F. WAGNER, former New York City mayor who ran second in the Democratic balloting, echoed Mayor Lindsay's words and added: "We hope we do not have here another Los Angeles or Minneapolis."

It appaars, however, that despite Mr. Lindsay's optimism that Mr. Wagner's warning, the City of New York stands a good chance of getting a conservative mayor come November—for better or worse.

And a lot of citizens feel it will be for the better.

Controllers Prove Point

It is no accident that the slowdown by air traffic controllers coincides with President Nixon's request to Congress for a 10-year, $5-billion airport expansion and improvement plan.

The slowdown by the men who guide planes in and out of our airports is designed to underscore dramatically just how serious the problem is. The project is succeeding.

By operating strictly by "the book," controllers have caused a gigantic air traffic jam. Effects of their action are being felt around the world.

Air traffic officals report that controllers are observing all safety rules and the slowdown does not constitute a hazard.

Even so, the controllers have made their point and the stalling game should be called off.

President Nixon has placed a program before Congress that would be financed in the main by increased taxes on those who use the airways.

Everyone isn't going to agree with Mr. Nixon's recommendations but details of the improvement package can be worked out in Congress.

The critical condition of the airport problem has been recognized and a solution proposed. The next step is to arrive at a final solution quickly.

If controllers persist in their stack-up plan, they are gilding the lily.

House Exceeded Authority

Arguments are flying thick and fast over the Supreme Court ruling that the U.S. House of Representatives acted illegally in denying a seat to Adam Clayton Powell two years ago.

For the most part, the debate is just wasted breath.

The Supreme Court merely ruled that Rep. Powell had met all constitutional requirements and therefore was entitled to be seated. The court upheld authority of the House to punish and control its members as it sees fit — including expulsion.

This means Rep. Powell could have been seated and then expelled, but excluding him from the seat he earned through re-election was an infringement of his constitutional rights.

The framers of the Constitution can be excused for not coming up with specific language for a case such as that presented by Rep. Powell. How could they possibly know that a man who had behaved in a manner deemed sufficiently outrageous by his House colleagues to bring on his expulsion could twice win re-election?

Nevertheless, the unique case did come up and a ruling was in order.

The court is not trying to deny House members the right to expel a representative for unbecoming conduct, it simply says the action must stay within constitutional guidelines.

Viet Reform Must Work

The fourth land-reform program to be proposed by the South Vietnamese government since the presidency of Ngo Dinh Diem, who was assassinated in 1963, is in the final stages of preparation.

Basically the program is designed to abolish tenant farming in the country by giving the land to the farmer tilling it, without cost, upon his application for ownership. The government would pay the former owner for the expropriated land.

The three previous programs required the tenant farmers to pay for the land themselves. This requirement plus complex administrative procedures caused the earlier plans to founder.

THE GOVERNMENT, in the present instance, apparently has been forced to match the Viet Cong who always have promised free land to the tenant farmers and actually have given it to them in the areas they control.

The Saigon regime even has announced it will recognize the land allotments made by the Viet Cong as each property comes under the government's control.

The injustice and hopelessness long associated with the systems of tenant farming practiced in many of the underdeveloped nations of the world has provided a fertile field for seeding communism. Remedial action has long been overdue.

But the new program must work and not fail as the previous plans. After awhile it becomes easy for the South Vietnamese peasants to scoff at any new government plan as being as unworkable as the ones before it.

PRESIDENT NIXON has offered American cooperation to South Vietnamese President Nguyen Van Thieu to help achieve the goals of the new plan. Hopefully the two governments will be able to implement the program in such a way as to successfully accomplish the land reforms.

In so doing they should not only help the war effort but also take a giant stride forward in winning the peace.

Mafia Wants White House

NEW YORK — It was a frosty day in January of '67 when 42-year-old, 6-foot-1 Ralph Salerno, Supervising Detective of the Police Dept.'s Central Intelligence Bureau retired and immediately poured on the heat. For years Ralph Salerno, a credit to his people — the American people — had been "the Department's Mafia desk."

Victor Riesel

Now he was saying that the combine could someday put a man in the White House — as President of the U.S.

After he had made his prediction to a newsman, there was an outcry. He had gone too far, they said. He was overdramatic. But the other day, after U.S. Attorney Dave Satz had put into the Newark, N.J., federal court records 2,000 pages of digested FBI eavesdropping-transcripts on life inside the Mafia, Ralph Saltrno again talked to a newsman.

"Now you see how I can say they might have a friend in the White House," said the nation's top civilian expert on the Cosa Nostra "And I can say it with full responsibility. Look at the transcripts. They talk of reaching federal judges. Look at other records — efforts to bribe mayors, governors, and federal officials. Organized crime just isn't a network of racketeeers digging into unions, shaking down employers or running bookmaking operations. It's the combine's political power, the inner sanctums they reach, and the effectiveness of the efforts to neutralize the voters of America."

HE POINTED TO A section of the Justice Dept.'s transcripts recording the conversations of Joe (Bayonne) Zicarelli, a New York Harbor waterfront "boss" in the "family" once run by the late Genovese. The big-time thug, who takes his orders from the Genovese combine caretaker, Jerry Catena, was electronically recorded as saying he would talk to Congressman Gallagher if the mob could not get to any one of three federal judges on an immigration case.

It must be noted here that this conversation is not the famous one allegedly held between Congressman Cornelius Gallagher of Jersey's 13th Congressional District and Joe "Bahonne" on June 21, 1960.

Mr. Gallagher has been called a "tool" and collaborator of the combine. He has been publicly charged with having an "alliance of interests" with the bugged Zicarelli. He has demanded all sorts of investigations to clear his name — but somehow they just haven't developed. Nor did he continue pushing.

Of the hundreds of thousands of words in the FBI's 13-volume transcript, Ralph Salerno pinpoints the Zicarelli conversation for what the ex-police official believes is the most vital of all implications in these documents.

"Neil" Gallagher once was considered by President Lyndon Johnson as a possible vice presidential running mate. That was in the spring of '64. Mr. Johnson had looked at what seemed to be the record. He had some 10 names on his list — all the way from Hubert Humphrey to Edmund Muskie, and from Gene McCarthy to Tom Dodd, and a young New Jersey Congressman who had a fine winning streak, a good war score, and was (and is) on the House Foreign Affairs Committee and Government Operations Committee. That was Mr. Gallagher.

BUT WHEN WORD of this got over to FBI headquarters, Director J. Edgar Hoover hurried over to the White House and showed President Johnson the other record. That was it for Representative Gallagher.

But what if there had been no electronic record? Congressman Gallagher, a politically influential Easterner, might have betn picked by the Texan as a vice presidential teammate. That would have put the friend of Joe (Bayonne) Zicarelli just a heartbeat from the presidncy.

But even if the script did not twist that way, Congressman Gallagher remained politically influential. And he is symbolic of the coziness the combine enjoys in the highest "places."

Let's trace it. Zicarelli's chief is Jerry Catena, one of the mob's most brutal hammermen, an unimaginably powerful gang chief worth scores of millions. Much of this money was made in partnership with Abner (Longy) Zwillmai, an investment genius whose trail led directly to three Wall Street brokerage houses. "Longy," a multimillionaire, was fabulously powerful in Jersey politics. And that's understatement. He reached into the heights of political and social spheres which were and still are interlocked with makers of national and international American policy.

ALL THIS MUST wait for other transcripts. But for the moment it is sufficient to report that on the way up Zwillman and Catena got a hand, a gun, a muscle and millions of dollars in business from the late Lucky Luciano and Mr. A., otherwise known as Joe Doto, now living his final days — absolutely unwanted — in Italy.

There will be hundreds of stories spurting out of the swollen Justice Dept.'s transcripts. We'll all tell them as we see them.

But the most vital view is that of Ralph Salerno who sees in this report on life in the Mafia the perversion of the essential decencies of life and liberty and democracy.

Now is the time for all good men to come to the aid of their parties. Now is the time to implement the recommendation of the President's commission on crime — and demand that Congress set up a permanent select committee to probe and probe the Cosa Nostra.

And when there is such a committee, Ralph Salerno should be — must be — its chief consultant. As I said earlier, he is a credit to his people — the American people.

Or does no one really care?

The Voters Speak

WASHINGTON — In recent elections for mayor in each of three cities — Los Angeles, Minneapolis and New York — the voters now have expressed themselves emphatically on the "law and order" issue.

They disapprove of the reluctance of local authorities to use the police promptly and deal with riots and disturbances effectively.

The simple truth is that the people are frightened and they are giving their support at the polls to those candidates in any of the political parties who seem to be willing to protect the citizenry.

In the primary Tuesday, Democratic and Republican voters in New York City heavily supported candidates on the "conservative" side in casting ballots for the nominations for mayor. It was, in fact, a turning against the incumbent leaders of both parties.

There has been an old rule in politics that when an administration in power doesn't do enough about an issue which has awakened deep emotions, opposition rises irrespective of party.

THE PEOPLE ARE NOT interested in whether the candidates or men in office call themselves "Conservatives" or "Liberals." They are concerned with what is going to be done to make the streets safe again and what restrictive measures will be applied. Rioters — using the excuse of "free speech" — have deliberately upset the peaceful life of many a community.

Educators themselves are puzzled or frustrated by the tactics of the demonstrators who seek publicity in various causes on the ground that they have a right to use almost any means to emphasize their dissent.

But the commonsense point of view of the average voter is that there are plenty of places where public issues can be discussed — in stadiums or convention halls — and that there is no justification for the seizure of buildings, whether public or private.

Even the churches have not been immune from such invasions and the people keep asking: "When are the troublemakers going to be arrested and punished?"

Resentment is rising all across the land. Members of Congress are going to feel it in the 1970 elections although the preservation of law and order is largely the responsibility of the states and cities. Pressure is growing inside Congress currently for legislation that will invoke federal power in order to help put down incipient rebellion.

THIS IS DESCRIBED by the intellectuals as a trend toward a "police state." But the American people are tired of reading about alleged "police brutality" and the demands that the police power be used only gently. They want results.

The dissatisfaction which has emerged all over the country is due not only to acts of irresponsible groups which have provoked riots and disturbances but to the failure of governmental power to prevent crime.

The upsurge in the number of murders and robberies being committed is worrying residents in rural and suburban districts as well as in the cities. While an increasing population is bound to bring a rise in crime, the peaceful citizen doesn't understand why police authority cannot be more intensively used and expanded.

So some of the candidates for public office and prominent persons who have argued that the answer to America's problems is not in the use of more police power but in spending more money on poverty and sociological problems are not convincing the voters that this is a solution.

The theory on which America has developed its form of government is that there must be obedience to authority and that, while discussion may be legitimate, violence cannot be condoned under any circumstances.

The people in the last presidential election gave a heavy majority against "permissiveness" by their combined vote for Nixon and Wallace.

THEY WERE NOT BLAMING Johnson as much as they were looking for a new leadership which would seek effective ways of dealing with internal disorder, if not open rebellion, by many elements in the country.

The voters are losing patience with rhetorical explanations and intellectual alibis. They want action by local governments as well as by the national government.

Cool It With Pesticides

The list of states deciding to play it cautious with the pesticide DDT is growing.

Arizona, one of the first states to recognize the potential pesticide danger, has banned the use of DDT for a year while studies are conducted on the relationship between the compound and the balance of nature.

IN CALIFORNIA, after July 1 it will be illegal to use DDT and related pesticides in homes and gardens. Agricultural use of DDT in dust form also will be prohibited.

Rhode Island is looking for a safe substitute and plans to ban DDT as soon as one is found.

After rejecting Mexican cantaloupes and dumping milk because of excessive DDT content, Texas has formed a special committee to investigate the whole pesticide problem.

In selling up the investigative panel, the Texas legislature said one of the aims is to "direct attention toward the possible contamination of the waters in the state, toxicity to humans from foodstuffs treated with DDT, harmful or fatal effects on the wildlife of Texas and other environmental hazards which might be attributable to DDT or similar chemical derivatives."

Other states that are working toward banning the use of DDT or have written laws restricting its use in some manner include: New York, Connecticut, West Virginia and Maryland.

Five Midwestern states have joined in a project to test pesticide levels in Lake Michigan fish.

PROOF IS AVAILABLE that the cumulative nature of pesticides of the DDT family causes large enough concentrations in birds and fish to inhibit reproduction.

The extent of DDT's harmful effect on man still is under study but many health and wildlife experts agree that the risks are too dangerous to take lightly.

Dr. Leslie L. Glasgow, assistant secretary of the interior, says, "It is time to replace DDT with less hazardous pesticides." We heartily agree.

The problem merits the attention of the Ohio General Assembly.

Timely Probe

Public and congressional cries for a review of the U.S. chemical and biological warfare program have been heeded by the Nixon administration.

President Nixon has ordered the review by the Arms Control and Disarmament Agency, the State Department and the Defense Department.

The always present danger was brought to attention last year when escaping nerve gas killed 6,000 sheep near an Army testing site in Utah.

Plans to ship obsolete—but potentially deadly—chemical bombs by rail to ports where they could be taken out to sea to be dumped have been postponed by the Army.

Chemical and biological warfare policy should be as open and above board as the nation's nuclear policy because it is equally as sinister.

The upcoming review and subseqent congressional inquiry will shed some much needed light on the controversial issue.

New York Goes Conservative

Mayor Lindsay still is in the race due to his nomination on the Liberal party ticket but without GOP support he is in trouble.

THE LIBERAL MAYOR'S image and record caused his defeat at the hands of John J. Marchi, an obsecure state senator and also the Conservative party nominee.

In the Democratic party primary race, the victor was City Comptroller Mario A. Procaccino who didn't wear a "law-and-order" tag, but was the most conservative candidate in a five-man field.

The Procaccino victory reflects the general trend among voters toward conservatism.

The swing to the right already has shown up in Los Angeles where Mayor Sam Yorty won re-election over Negro councilman Thomas Gradley and in the Minneapolis mayor race where a former police detective emerged victorious after a campaign based on the theme of "law and order."

Mayor Lindsay attributed his defeat to "forces of reaction and backlash" stemming from a mood of hostility in his city and the nation. He optimistically predicted the return of a "mood of reason" before the November election.

ROBERT F. WAGNER, former New York City mayor who ran second in the Democratic balloting, echoed Mayor Lindsay's words and added: "We hope we do not have here another Los Angeles or Minneapolis."

It appaars, however, that despite Mr. Lindsay's optimism that Mr. Wagner's warning, the City of New York stands a good chance of getting a conservative mayor come November—for better or worse.

And a lot of citizens feel it will be for the better.

HINTS FROM HELOISE

In Lieu Of Hot Luaus, . . .

DEAR FOLKS: I am getting so many letters about luau torches falling over because of the thin metal poles they are put on. This is extremely dangerous because the kerosene pours out when they fall and can cause a bad fire.

Heloise

All of you are asking the safest way to use them, and here are some suggestions:

All luau torches are on a metal pole. You remove the pole and can use any large vase or flower pot to put the top of the torch in. These may be set anywhere. You can also dig a little hole about an inch deep and insert them in your flower bed or yard, edge of driveway etc I find this most beautiful.

I also learned after living in Hawaii that you can take any nice urn, fill it full of sand and take the top container, which holds the kerosene and sink it in the sand. This can be put anywhere! It's beautiful when put out on a patio table. Or did you all realize that? It makes a darling centerpiece.

Really, the thought was that most of us do have little side tables way out of the way, and if you take any kind of container and fill it with sand, then plant your luau container in it, it's the greatest because they can be moved anywhere in your yard.

If you are going to use the pole itself, plant a piece of pipe in the ground and insert your pole down inside the pipe. Take precautions when using luau torches. Remember fire IS fire.

HELOISE.

Letter Of Laughter

DEAR HELOISE: The letter suggesting a frozen teething ring to keep down the swelling after a bump reminded me of an incident many years ago.

Our young son was forever getting bumps, and I was forever struggling with the ice cube tray. One day I couldn't budge it. In desperation, I grabbed a package of frozen spinach, ripped off the carton, and applied the "green ice" to the bump on his head.

It worked!

When I told my husband, who hates spinach, he was glad to know that the stuff was finally good for something!

LUCILE PECK.

DEAR HELOISE: I have a small, but helpful hint for the ladies who sometimes get frustrated trying to fit sandwiches into plastic sandwich bags, especially if they cut the sandwiches in half.

Sometimes you feel like you need another hand!

All you have to do is slightly dampen the surface where you're working, lay the bag flat, lift the short edge of it, and slide the sandwich in.

The bag will stick to the counter top, and you don't need the third hand anymore!

MRS. COLLINS.

DEAR HELOISE: Our house is old, and the back porch looked terrible. The paint on the walls was so cracked that just painting over it wouldn't have been much of an improvement.

We needed something with a texture to cover the cracks, so we decided to use burlap, and it turned out beautiful.

It's easy to apply with wheat paste. When I cut the pieces a little too small, no problem — I just pushed the material over because of the loose weave.

Makes a very attractive and different porch. And inexpensive too.

JOYCE M. NAUNAPPER.

DEAR HELOISE: A few years ago, when full petticoats were popular, I paid a fabulous sum for one made of nylon and exquisite lace.

Not long ago, I became so bored looking at the same drab tailored curtain on my bathroom window that I decided to make a change.

I looked through materials in the closet and came across this outdated petticoat.

Suddenly I had an idea to change it into a cool, frilly curtain for the window.

I removed the part that fits snugly around the hips, being careful to leave the row of lace intact around the edge of the upper tier.

Then I slit the petticoat where it was seamed together, and used gold thumbtacks (the petticoat is beige) to fasten the upper row of lace to the top facing of the window.

Everyone who sees my curtain is astonished, and I'm sure there will be many petticoats hanging over windows soon!

Buckeye Girls Hold Legislative Session

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Delegates to Buckeye Girls' State conducted a brief mock legislative session Thursday in the Statehouse chambers of the Ohio House of Representatives.

After receiving a welcome on their tour of the Statehouse from House members, the girls took over the floor and voted to rename Interstate 75 the American Legion Highway.

The 1,300 delegates to the American Legion sponsored government workshop being held at Capital University conduct panel discussions today on Ohio law. The discussion will be headed by Ohio Supreme Court Judge Robert M. Ducan and Rep. Ethen G. Swanbeck, R-14 Huron.

Ohio Senate Unit Okays State Employes Pay Hike

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A bill to give a $500 across-the-board pay raise to state employes making less than $8,300 a year has gotten the approval of a Senate subcommittee.

The bill, which includes another $330 a year in fringe benefits, is expected to be reported out of the full Senate Finance Committee next week.

Still to face action in the House, the proposal would cost the state an estimated $41 million. It has the backing of the Ohio Civil Service Employes Association.

The State Employes Union, smaller but more militant than the OCSEA, announced, however, it will go ahead with a planned protest march on the Statehouse next Tuesday.

Al Bilik, union director, said his group brought pressure on the subcommittee to get the bill out. However, the union contends the proposed raise is not sufficient.

Bilik has been pushing for a $1,500 across-the-board pay hike. A bill to provide it was introduced in the House by Democrats but has yet to be assigned to committee.

In other action Thursday, the Senate passed a bill to allot an incoming governor $30,000 in expenses so he can begin working his way into government in the period between his election and inauguration.

The vote was 28-0. There was no debate.

The bill, designed to help the new administration get off the ground, would enable the governor-elect to put his cabinet choices on the state payroll prior to the time they actually take command.

Incoming cabinet officials would work with their outgoing counterparts prior to taking office.

A bill to give a tax extemption to industries for pollution control devices such as smokestacks passed 59-22 after considerable debate.

An attempt to amend it to take out the exemption was tabled. The amendment was offered by Rep. Richard Christiansen, D-17 Mansfield.

Christiansen said he couldn't understand why an exemption should be given for complying with a law already on the books.

A companion bill to permit tax exemption certificates to be passed along to new owners pased 75-3. Both bills earlier were approved by the Senate. They now go to the governor for signing.

The House passed measures designating Interstate 70 as "General Dwight D. Eisenhower Memorial Highway" and Interstate 75 as "American Legion Memorial Highway."

The House will take up again a bill to create a regional air pollution control district in south western Ohio, northern Kentucky and southeastern Indiana.

The bill failed 51 to 34 Wednesday but Rep. William P. Bowen, D-69 Cincinnati moved to bring it up again. Bowen was against the measure Wednesday.

His motion was left pending, meaning it can go to a vote anytime a member asks and a majority of the legislators on hand agree to reconsider it.

FAA's Dispute With Controllers Has Been Settled

WASHINGTON (AP) — The dispute between the Federal Aviation Administration and air controllers that has disrupted air traffic at many of the nation's airports has been ended, according to the attorney for the Professional Air Traffic Controllers Organization.

F. Lee Bailey, reached by telephone at his Boston home, said this morning that the organization has urged its members to return to their jobs and hoped they would do so immediately.

However, Bailey said it would be misleading to term the development as an agreement since that would imply an organized effort to have the controllers not show up.

He did say the FAA has agreed to consider various controller demands for better opportunities and more appealing conditions.

Seeks New Rifle Contracts

Firm Scrambles To Meet Army Schedule On M16s

WASHINGTON (AP) — One of the two new suppliers of M16 rifles for the Vietnam war is scrambling to catch up with the Army's delivery schedule and stay in the running for huge new rifle contracts to be awarded this summer.

As of May 31, Harrington & Richardson Inc. had supplied 12,210 of the lightweight, rapid-firing weapons used by combat troops in Vietnam. The delivery schedule on the controversial contract the Worcester, Mass., firm received last spring called for supply of 19,000 rifles by that date.

The Army, stirred a wave of congressional criticism a year ago when it awarded M16 contracts to H&R and to General Motors' Hydramatic Division. The House and Senate Armed Services Committee launched investigations after the Associated Press disclosed that the Army would be paying the new suppliers far more than it had to buy M16s from Colt's Inc. of Hartford, Conn.

It also was disclosed then that two other companies which had sought the contracts were prepared to supply the rifles at a lower price than either GM or H&R.

The Army told Congress it had not considered price. Army officials said they chose GM and H&R on grounds they were best qualified to supply quality weapons under an accelerated production schedule.

An Army spokesman said Thursday that H&R had fallen short of the contract delivery schedule for three of the first four months of production. He added that the company has corrected its problems and expects to be on schedule by July 31.

In July, the Army is scheduled to award two new M16 contracts for a total of 687,652 rifles at a rate of 60,000 a month starting next spring.

Unless the Army's requirements for M16s increase, one of the three current suppliers—GM, H&R or Colt's—will be dropped.

An Army spokesman said the proposals for the new contracts were submitted June 12. He said the contracts will be awarded primarily on the basis of lowest price. But, he added, other factors could be decisive.

After the controversy, over last spring's awards, Congress amended procurement regulations to require that price always be considered even if it is not the deciding factor.

The original letter contracts called for paying GM $56 million to supply 240,000 rifles and H&R $42 million for the same number. The Army said the difference in price was due to labor costs.

When the final price was set later in the year, the figure for GM had been cut $9.3 million while that for H&R was down $825,000. The totals were still higher than what the Army was paying Colt's.

GM has been turning out M16s ahead of the contract schedule. As of May 31, it had supplied 29,676. Its contract also had called for delivery of 19,000 by that date.

The present permissable rate is 6 per cent and the Senate bill, as originally written, would have contained no limit.

A House amendment imposed the 8 per cent limit.

HINTS FROM HELOISE

In Lieu Of Hot Luaus, . . .

DEAR FOLKS: I am getting so many letters about luau torches falling over because of the thin metal poles they are put on. This is extremely dangerous because the kerosene pours out when they fall and can cause a bad fire.

ary, or members of hate groups."

On the major military controversy of 1969—whether to authorize a Nixon-sponsored Safeguard antiballistic missile system—the President said flat out:

"We will win the fight on Safeguard. It will not be necessary to compromise."

This was a firmer forecast of the administration's voting strength in the Senate on this divisive issue than any uttered previously by Nixon or Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird.

Nixon said intelligence, received since he recommended Safeguard, indicates the Soviet Union is testing a new multi-warhead offensive missile that, if made fully operational, could wipe out 30 per cent of the United States' Minuteman missile sites by 1973.

As to Vietnam, the President said:

—He can cite no public evidence that serious peace talks are beginning in Paris but asserted, "I am not pessimistic about the outcome."

—Gen. Creighton W. Abrams, the U.S. commander in Veitnam, has orders to "conduct this war with a minimum of American casualties."

—A Vietnam cease-fire, urged by some critics, would be welcomed—but only if supervised to make sure the Communists didn't "continue to kill our men."

—Thieu is cooperating with the United States in the peace search and "under those circumstances, there is no question about our standing with President Thieu." But Nixon said if free elections showed the South Vietnamese would prefer some other government, the United States would accept the decision.

property and spend $250,000 on establishing a museum there. A few days later, the society sent another letter saying it had dropped the post office site and was thinking of building an entirely new structure at or near 2nd and Market Sts. in order to incorporate into the exhibits a beehive kiln of the old Brunt Pottery, terming the kiln "the last of its kind in Ohio."

It was then that the mayor and the East Liverpool Historical Society filed their objections. They said the 2nd St. building would be within the city's flood zone, it would be close to the proposed Freeway extension and the Penn Central tracks and it would be in an area marked for future industrial development.

Porter had indicated the state favored the 2nd St. site and a new building because it felt the cost of acquiring, renovating and operating the old post office would be prohibitive. The tentative budget called for $75,000 for acquiring the building from the federal government; $100,000 for rehabilitation and $75,000 for exhibits.

At the outset, both the City of East Liverpool and the Ohio Department of Public Works had applied to take title to the post office property. Willshaw later withdrew the city's application in favor of the state agency.

Willshaw also received a letter today from the General Services Admnistration in Chicago acknowledging receipt of his letter withdrawing the city's application and leaving the way clear for the property to be acquired by the state.

Cab Driver Held Following Chase

LISBON — A Yellow Cab whose driver pulled out of a Highlandtown service station at 7 this morning without paying for gasoline was stopped less than 30 minutes later by sheriff's deputies from Carroll and Stark Counties.

The driver identified himself as William Lawrence Laffey, 23, of 227 N. Graham St., Pittsburgh. He is being held in the Carroll County Jail at Carrollton on a traffic charge while the Columbiana County sheriff's office here checks out the cab with authorities in Pittsburgh and Harrisburg.

Mrs. Goldie Curry, who operates Curry's Sinclair Service on Route 39, reported the theft to Ohio Highway Patrol Post 15 and said the cab had a Pennsylvania license. Post 15 notified the sheriff's office and deputies alerted Carroll County.

Carroll County radioed at 7:16 that deputies had the cab in sight and were pursuing. They and Stark deputies stopped the cab on Route 43 north of Waynesburg.

Fines Suspended For 2 Women In Fighting Charges

Municipal Judge Samuel M. Chertoff today decreed suspended $50 fines for two women whom he convicted on charges of disorderly conduct by fighting.

The defendants were Mrs. Marjorie June Shields of Substation and Mrs. Wilma J. Keener of 508 Sanford St., both cited June 5 at 10:35 p.m. in the parking lot at the Owls Club by Acting Lt. William A. Devon and Patrolmen Charles A. Winters and Dwight Garvey. The two women were ordered to pay court costs.

Before the case went to trial, the judge recalled and paraphrased a remark that he said was made 35 years ago by Common Pleas Judge W. F. Lones in an action that had been in and out of his court for 12 years. Citing the frequent appearances of Mrs. Shields and Mrs. Keener, Judge Chertoff said: "I hope this will lay the Keener and Shields cases to rest."

Devon testified the three officers were dispatched to the club's lot on a report of a fight. He said the officers "found Mr. (Ray) Shields making accusations against his wife."

"Mrs. Keener appeared from around a corner of the building and Mrs. Shields took off running toward her," he testified. "They got into a tussle. They were pulling each other's hair. We broke it up."

Mrs. Shields was represented by George A. Aronson and William Telzrow of Wellsville appeared for Mrs. Keener.

Club Briefed On Trucking

Roger Babb discussed the trucking industry during the Kiwanis Club meeting Thursday noon at the Travelers Hotel.

Babb, a Kiwanian, is associated with YELP Service, Inc. He is a former teacher.

"Trucking is the second largest employer in the United States, ssecond only to agriculture," Babb said. He added that most people appraise the industry in the light of personal experiences.

"Many have praise for truck drivers and consider them to be good samaritans and 'helpers in need.' Others view the big trucks with apprehension."

He said YELP has a fleet of 85 trucks, which traveled a total of 491,589 miles in 1968, used 101,400 gallons of gas and diesel fuel, paid $25,627 in various taxes. He said the firm's payroll was in excess of $300,000.

He reviewed some of the problems of small trucking firms.

Dayton Allen, president, introduced Fred Deters, a new member.

James Locke displayed one of the souvenir plates of the pottery festival and Rowland Kaufman asked for volunteers to be present at festival headquarters to answer questions relative to the clock removed from the Central Building. The clock is on display.

Freeway

"A highway is our nation's transportation life - line," Major said. He hailed the newest segment of the road as an aid to the economy of Columbiana County and East Liverpool.

—:—

LANG presided and spoke briefly. Remarks also were made by James Boyd, chairman of the county commissioners, Kimble and Chandler.

Lang recalled that discussions on construction of the highway began nearly 15 years ago and "a lot of people thought it was just a pipe dream." Then the commissioners of the four affected counties — Columbiana, Mahoning, Trumbull and Ashtabula — provided $10,000 from each county to finance a preliminary study looking toward the construction of the highway, he added.

Boyd recalled the occasion more than 50 years ago when the original Lincoln Highway (later called Route 30) was located through East Liverpool. He cited the new lake river road as an aid to industrial development and pointed out the new county airport is less than five minutes away from the new highway.

Boyd also commended the highway department for the work it performed on a section of old Route 30, which now will revert to the status of a county road. The state resurfaced the stretch, painted new center lines and built up the berms in preparing to turn it over to the county, he said.

CHANDLER represented A. C. (Pat) Patterson of Ashtabula, president of the lake - river association, who was unable to attend. Chandler said the commissioners of the four counties provided the fund for the highway study in 1954. The highway association was formed in 1958, he recalled.

Chandler pointed out the first segment of the highway — lying inside the East Liverpool city limits — was dedicated on Oct. 17, 1962. When the entire highway has been built, it will serve a population of about 750,000, he added.

Others introduced at the ceremony were: Commissioners R. Max Gard and Charles Gause, County Engineer Bert A. Dawson Jr., Mayor George E. Willshaw, and Arthur Cooksey and J Paul Mossman, both of Youngstown, and William Thorp of Niles, members of the Board of Trustees of the lake - river association.

THE OPENING of the new segment also brought a change in traffic controls at the junction of Route 7 and former U.S. 30 just west of the Super-30 Drive-in Theater.

Dawson said Clem Krieger, sign chief for Division 11, advised him the flashing red light above the intersection will be changed to flashing red for Route 30 traffic and flashing amber for Route 7.

The state will remove the four - way stop signs and install stop signs only for Route 30 traffic. In other words, Dawson said, Route 7 will be the main highway.

Once the new stretch of Route 11 is open and the necessary paper work is completed, Route 30 will revert to the county highway system from the Routes 7-30 intersection northwest to the West Point connection with Route 11.

On the major military controversy of 1969—whether to authorize a Nixon-sponsored Safeguard antiballistic missile system—the President said flat out:

"We will win the fight on Safeguard. It will not be necessary to compromise."

This was a firmer forecast of the administration's voting strength in the Senate on this divisive issue than any uttered previously by Nixon or Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird.

Nixon said intelligence, received since he recommended Safeguard, indicates the Soviet Union is testing a new multiwarhead offensive missile that, if made fully operational, could wipe out 80 per cent of the United States' Minuteman missile sites by 1973.

As to Vietnam, the President said:

—He can cite no public evidence that serious peace talks are beginning in Paris but asserted, "I am not pessimistic about the outcome."

—Gen. Creighton W. Abrams, the U.S. commander in Veitnam, has orders to "conduct this war with a minimum of American casualties."

—A Vietnam cease-fire, urged by some critics, would be welcomed—but only if supervised to make sure the Communists didn't "continue to kill our men."

—Thieu is cooperating with the United States in the peace search and "under those circumstances, there is no question about our standing with President Thieu." But Nixon said if free elections showed the South Vietnamese would prefer some other government, the United States would accept the decision.

property and spend $250,000 on establishing a museum there. A few days later, the society sent another letter saying it had dropped the post office site and was thinking of building an entirely new structure at or near 2nd and Market Sts. in order to incorporate into the exhibits a beehive kiln of the old Brunt Pottery, terming the kiln "the last of its kind in Ohio."

It was then that the mayor and the East Liverpool Historical Society filed their objections. They said the 2nd St. building would be within the city's flood zone, it would be close to the proposed Freeway extension and the Penn Central tracks and it would be in an area marked for future industrial development.

Porter had indicated the state favored the 2nd St. site and a new building because it felt the cost of acquiring, renovating and operating the old post office would be prohibitive. The tentative budget called for $75,000 for acquiring the building from the federal government; $100,000 for rehabilitation and $75,000 for exhibits.

At the outset, both the City of East Liverpool and the Ohio Department of Public Works had applied to take title to the post office property. Willshaw later withdrew the city's application in favor of the state agency.

Willshaw also received a letter today from the General Services Admnistration in Chicago acknowledging receipt of his letter withdrawing the city's application and leaving the way clear for the property to be acquired by the state.

Cab Driver Held Following Chase

LISBON — A Yellow Cab whose driver pulled out of a Highlandtown service station at 7 this morning without paying for gasoline was stopped less than 30 minutes later by sheriff's deputies from Carroll and Stark Counties.

The driver identified himself as William Lawrence Laffey, 23, of 227 N. Graham St., Pittsburgh. He is being held in the Carroll County Jail at Carrollton on a traffic charge while the Columbiana County sheriff's office here checks out the cab with authorities in Pittsburgh and Harrisburg.

Mrs. Goldie Curry, who operates Curry's Sinclair Service on Route 39, reported the theft to Ohio Highway Patrol Post 15 and said the cab had a Pennsylvania license. Post 15 notified the sheriff's office and deputies alerted Carroll County.

Carroll County radioed at 7:16 that deputies had the cab in sight and were pursuing. They and Stark deputies stopped the cab on Route 43 north of Waynesburg.

Fines Suspended For 2 Women In Fighting Charges

Municipal Judge Samuel M. Chertoff today decreed suspended $50 fines for two women whom he convicted on charges of disorderly conduct by fighting.

The defendants were Mrs. Marjorie June Shields of Substation and Mrs. Wilma J. Keener of 508 Sanford St., both cited June 5 at 10:35 p.m. in the parking lot at the Owls Club by Acting Lt. William A. Devon and Patrolmen Charles A. Winters and Dwight Garvey. The two women were ordered to pay court costs.

Before the case went to trial, the judge recalled and paraphrased a remark that he said was made 35 years ago by Common Pleas Judge W. F. Lones in an action that had been in and out of his court for 12 years. Citing the frequent appearances of Mrs. Shields and Mrs. Keener, Judge Chertoff said: "I hope this will lay the Keener and Shields cases to rest."

Devon testified the three officers were dispatched to the club's lot on a report of a fight. He said the officers "found Mr. (Ray) Shields making accusations against his wife."

"Mrs. Keener appeared from around a corner of the building and Mrs. Shields took off running toward her," he testified. "They got into a tussle. They were pulling each other's hair. We broke it up."

Mrs. Shields was represented by George A. Aronson and William Telzrow of Wellsville appeared for Mrs. Keener.

Club Briefed On Trucking

Roger Babb discussed the trucking industry during the Kiwanis Club meeting Thursday noon at the Travelers Hotel.

Babb, a Kiwanian, is associated with YELP Service, Inc. He is a former teacher.

"Trucking is the second largest employer in the United States, ssecond only to agriculture," Babb said. He added that most people appraise the industry in the light of personal experiences.

"Many have praise for truck drivers and consider them to be good samaritans and 'helpers in need.' Others view the big trucks with apprehension."

He said YELP has a fleet of 85 trucks, which traveled a total of 491,589 miles in 1968, used 101,400 gallons of gas and diesel fuel, paid $25,627 in various taxes. He said the firm's payroll was in excess of $300,000.

He reviewed some of the problems of small trucking firms.

Dayton Allen, president, introduced Fred Deters, a new member.

James Locke displayed one of the souvenir plates of the pottery festival and Rowland Kaufman asked for volunteers to be present at festival headquarters to answer questions relative to the clock removed from the Central Building. The clock is on display.

Freeway

"A highway is our nation's transportation life - line," Major said. He hailed the newest segment of the road as an aid to the economy of Columbiana County and East Liverpool.

—:—

LANG presided and spoke briefly. Remarks also were made by James Boyd, chairman of the county commissioners, Kimble and Chandler.

Lang recalled that discussions on construction of the highway began nearly 15 years ago and "a lot of people thought it was just a pipe dream." Then the commissioners of the four affected counties — Columbiana, Mahoning, Trumbull and Ashtabula — provided $10,000 from each county to finance a preliminary study looking toward the construction of the highway, he added.

Boyd recalled the occasion more than 50 years ago when the original Lincoln Highway (later called Route 30) was located through East Liverpool. He cited the new lake river road as an aid to industrial development and pointed out the new county airport is less than five minutes away from the new highway.

Boyd also commended the highway department for the work it performed on a section of old Route 30, which now will revert to the status of a county road. The state resurfaced the stretch, painted new center lines and built up the berms in preparing to turn it over to the county, he said.

CHANDLER represented A. C. (Pat) Patterson of Ashtabula, president of the lake - river association, who was unable to attend. Chandler said the commissioners of the four counties provided the fund for the highway study in 1954. The highway association was formed in 1958, he recalled.

Chandler pointed out the first segment of the highway — lying inside the East Liverpool city limits — was dedicated on Oct. 17, 1962. When the entire highway has been built, it will serve a population of about 750,000, he added.

Others introduced at the ceremony were: Commissioners R. Max Gard and Charles Gause, County Engineer Bert A. Dawson Jr., Mayor George E. Willshaw, and Arthur Cooksey and J. Paul Mossman, both of Youngstown, and William Thorp of Niles, members of the Board of Trustees of the lake - river association.

THE OPENING of the new segment also brought a change in traffic controls at the junction of Route 7 and former U.S. 30 just west of the Super-30 Drive-in Theater.

Dawson said Clem Krieger, sign chief for Division 11, advised him the flashing red light above the intersection will be changed to flashing red for Route 30 traffic and flashing amber for Route 7.

The state will remove the four - way stop signs and install stop signs only for Route 30 traffic. In other words, Dawson said, Route 7 will be the main highway.

Once the new stretch of Route 11 is open and the necessary paper work is completed, Route 30 will revert to the county highway system from the Routes 7-30 intersection northwest to the West Point connection with Route 11.

ANN LANDERS

Hip-Shot Harry Strikes

By Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: I'm 16. My boy friend, Byron, is 17 and a judo buff.

Last night he was practicing some new holds and flipped me over. I landed on my back. The pain was excruciating and I was sure he fractured my spine at least. I told him to leave and I'd think up a story.

I crawled to my folks' bedroom, woke them up and said I had fallen out of bed and to call the doctor. They got the truth out of me fast because they noticed I had my clothes on. The falling-out-of-bed story didn't make any sense.

A bone specialist who lives next door came over right away. He said nothing was broken but I had a dislocated hip.

My folks are so furious with Byron they told me I can't see him any more. Help me, please. He's really neat. — CYNTHIA.

-:-

Dear Cyn: He may be neat but he's got no business dislocating your hip. Promise me, no more judo, and I'll ask your folks to give Byron another chance to prove he can behave like a gentleman. And you can help by behaving like a lady.

Bugged By A Rug

Dear Ann: A friend who was moving into a smaller place sold me a beautiful Oriental rug. The price I paid was a bargain and we both knew it. This was 10 years ago.

Last aeek the friend telephoned and said, "You remember that Oriental rug I sold you, dear. Well, my sister feels since it is a family heirloom it should be kept in the family. I want to buy it back and give it to her."

It would cost me easily four times as much if I were to try to replace that rug today. I'm sure my friend is aware of this.

Am I obligated to sell the rug back to her for the price I paid? I value her friendship and I want to do the right thing. — FEELING RUGGED.

-:-

Dear Feeling: Ten years later is pretty darned late to remember that a rug is an heirloom. If the woman valued YOUR friendship she wouldn't have suggested such a thing.

If you don't sell the rug back to her for what you paid, her nose will be out of joint. If you do, YOURS will be. Take your choice.

I The Drop Out

Dear Ann: Two years ago my husband dropped out of sight. I had to move in with my mother and go to work to support myself and our two small children.

Last week I ran into my husband at a suburban supermarket where he's employed. I nearly died of the shock. When I asked where he had been, he said, "My but you're nosy."

I pleaded with him to give me a divorce. His answer was, "Sorry, it's against my religion."

Ann, that bum never saw the inside of a church in his life. I don't know what religion he's talking about. I want to leave the country with a man I've been in love with for over a year. He's offered to introduce me as his wife and change the children's name to his.

I'm tempted. What do you say? — ESTRELLITA.

-:-

Dear Es: Don't do it. The bum could have you stopped by the immigration authorities and prevent you from taking his children out of the country. You're still married to him.

Hire a lawyer and free yourself of this loser, legally.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of The Review, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

250,000 Troop Pullout During '70, Some Think

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon's newest comments on U.S. troop withdrawal are being interpreted by some military sources as meaning 250,000 American servicemen could be out of Vietnam by the end of 1970.

Nixon said Thursday "I would hope that we could beat" a timetable proposed by former Secretary of Defense Clark M. Clifford. calling for the pullout of 100,000 troops by this year's end and all U.S. ground combat forces by the close of 1970.

Military sources, after Nixon's news conference, noted the President referred to action already taken to withdraw one-tenth of American fighting forces, meaning the 25,000 who will come out in July and August.

The 25,000 is considered by the administration as the equivalent of a combat division "package," counting support elements.

There are 10 Army and Marine divisions or equivalent in Vietnam. If all these ground combat packages were brought out, it would total about 250,000 men, officials suggest.

That still would leave nearly 300,000 men in Vietnam to provide air, helicopter, artillery and other backup for the South Vietnamese infantry. Gradually, these backup elements would be reduced as the South Vietnamese took over their functions.

Military planners have contended it would take about two years to complete an orderly withdrawal of the roughly 540,00 U.S. troops in Vietnam and huge amounts of equipment and supplies, other than what would be left behind for the South Vietnamese.

As for further withdrawals after the first 25,000, Nixon said "another decision will be made in August."

The number, the President said, "will depend upon the extent of the training of the South Vittnamese, as well as developments in Paris, and the other factors that I have mentioned previously."

One such factor would be the level of enemy military activity.

Nixon told the nation "there is no substantial evidence, publicly" that the time has come for substantive negotiations with the enemy in Paris, where the peace talks are in a virtual stalemate.

However, the President said he is not pessimistic about the outcome and said "we hope within the next two or three months to see some progress" in discussions.

Thinking has been in terms of removing possibly up to 70,000 troops, overall, by the first of next year. Nixon's remarks opened the prospect of raising the goal to 100,000 or more this year.

Nixon rejected Clifford's implication "that the United States is at the present time responsible for the level of fighting."

"It takes two in order to reduce the level of fighting," Nixon said, adding a suggestion that if the enemy would match the U.S. troop withdrawal "that would tend to reduce the level of fighting."

Nixon had some tart comments on the record of the Johnson administration and Clifford, though he said "I respect his judgment as a former secretary of defense."

Asked whether he had any comment to offer, Clifford replied: "None."

"I said all I had to say," Clifford added, referring to his 21-page article on the war.

In 1643, Capt. Thomas Pride arrested or excluded all Presbyterian and Royalist members of the British House of Commons prior to the trial of King Charles I. The remaining members were called the Rump Parliament.

BLOOD PRESSURE
Q. Is high blood pressure due to excess blood in the body?
A. No. High blood pressure is a condition related to blood vessels — not blood itself. Except in cases of heavy loss of blood the amount or volume of fluid in the circulatory system is not a major consideration in blood pressure.

Q. I am only 42 and have already gone through the menopause. Isn't this abnormal?

Nixon Sees Senators Lose Again In Orioles' 7th Straight

Baltimore's McNally In Two-Hitter

By The Associated Press

Richard Nixon was the people's choice in 1968 but he's not lining up bipartisan support from a certain group of Washington Senators in 1969.

The President showed up at Robert F. Kennedy Stadium with daughter Julie and son-in-law David Eisenhower Thursday night, just in time to see the baseball-playing Senators blow a 2-0 decision to the red-hot Baltimore Orioles.

It was Mr. Nixon's third trip to the ballpark to root, root, root for the home team and the third time he's struck out. That might be party politics, as far as Bob Short, owner of the Senators and treasurer of the Democratic National Committee, is concerned, but it's no way to treat a loyal supporter like Manager Ted Williams, who voted for Mr. Nixon last November.

In other American League activity, the Boston Red Sox blanked Cleveland 3-0, the New York Yankees downed Detroit 5-3, Minnesota flattened California 8-1 and the Chicago White Sox outlasted Seattle 13-10. Kansas City and Oakland were not scheduled.

President Nixon was delayed in leaving for the ballpark by a news conference and didn't get there until the eighth inning. Jim Hannan had blanked the Orioles for seven innings but tired and gave way to Dennis Higgins to start the eighth.

Higgins was in hot water immediately. Don Buford doubled, Paul Blair beat out a bunt and slugging Frank Robinson was advancing to the bat, which was bed enough. Then the President made his entrance.

Home plate umpire John Flaherty held up the game until Mr. Nixon's party was seated. Williams ordered his infield to play back and Robinson bounced into a double play as Buford scored.

That was all Dave McNally needed as he hurled a two-hitter for his 10th victory and the Orioles' seventh in a row. Baltimore pushed across an insurance run in the ninth on Brooks Robinson's double, a wild pitch and Dave Johnson's sacrifice fly.

McNally yielded only leadoff singles to Tim Cullen in the third and Paul Casanova in the ninth.

"The President was really pulling hard for us," reported Short, who sat in the presidential box. "He told me, 'You've got to win this one.' He was really cheering and said he hoped Frank Howard would get up in the ninth. He felt pretty bad that we couldn't win with him here."

Boston's Ray Culp also hurled a two-hitter against Cleveland as he halted a skid which had seen the Red Sox lose five of six games. A two-run homer in the first by Carl Yastrzemski, his 19th helped Culp to his 10th victory.

The right-hander yielded only a pair of pinch singles, by Lou Klimchock in the third and Lee Maye in the fifth. The game was delayed by rain after the second and fourth innings.

Detroit pitcher Earl Wilson's throwing error on Jerry Kenney's high bouncer in the second inning allowed three runs to score as the Yankees tripped the Tigers. Gene Michael and Jake Gibbs, who singled, and Horace Clarke, who walked, all scampered across the plate as Wilson's hurried throw skipped past first baseman Norm Cash.

Stan Bahnsen, 4-9, went the route for New York. Dick McAuliffe homered in the ninth for Detroit's final run.

Minnesota's Dick Woodson, helped by five unearned runs, limited California to three hits and pitched the Twins to within two percentage points of Oakland in the AL West. Jim Fregosi's fifth homer was the only damaging blow off the rookie right-hander.

The White Sox got three runs on a freak play to turn back Seattle. They had just tied the score 1-0 all in the last of the seventh and had the bases loaded with one out. Reliever Bob Locker uncorked a wild pitch as the go-ahead run crossed and when catcher Gerry McNertney's return throw sailed into right field the other two runners also scored.

Carlos May and Bill Melton homered for the Sox while McNertney had a homer and five runs batted in for the Pilots.

Kuhn Acts To Break Up Gambling Ties

★ ★ ★ Braves, A's Heads Ready To Sell ★ ★ ★

NEW YORK (AP) — Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn has moved to force a breakup of ties between two major league teams and Las Vegas casinos.

A formal announcement of Kuhn's action was set here today after a month's probe of stock holdings in the gambling business by top officials of the Atlanta Braves and Oakland Athletics.

Delbert W. Coleman, chairman of Parvin-Dohrmann Co. which owns three hotels and casinos, is slated to bow out as a director of the Braves, officials disclosed Thursday.

Three other baseball figures —Braves President William C. Bartholomay, Braves Director John J. Louis Jr., and Oakland owner, Charles O. Finley—will stay in the sport, but are expected to scrap their ties with Parvin-Dohrmann.

Kuhn's move came while pro football is also entangled in a controversy over Commissioner Pete Rozelle's demand that New York Jets quarterback Joe Namath sell a bar allegedly used by gamblers. Namath vowed to retire from football instead.

Baseball traditionally has frowned on any ties with gambling since a World Series scandal in 1919.

Coleman, reached in New York, said the owners had volunteered to end the double duty by three Braves executives on the boards of directors of both the club and Parvin-Dohrmann.

Coleman, while quitting the baseball board, will keep his estimated $18 million in stock in Parvin-Dohrmann, which owns the Stardust, Fremont and Aladdin casinos in Las Vegas. Coleman owns another firm which leases and operates two of the casinos.

Bartholomay and Louis are slated to resign from the Parvin-Dohrmann board, officials said.

Sources in both the business world and the government's stock market watchdog, the Securities and Exchange Commission, said Finley, Bartholomay and Louis were expected to have to sell their Parvin-Dohrmann stock.

Finley, reached in Chicago, said, "I have no comment on anything."

Bartholomay could not be reached. Louis was reported on vacation in London.

Bartholomay and Louis own only 2,000 shares each. Finley bought 30,000 shares valued at $2.7 million in April. Coleman controls 207,000 shares.

Parvin-Dohrmann is the same firm that figured in the controversy over Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas' former $12,000-a- year post as president of a foundation linked by stock to casinos.

Kuhn began his probe of the baseball involvement after The Associated Press made public the stock ties of the Braces and Athletics owners a month ago.

A source in the SEC, which has been investigating Parvin-Dohrmann, said the Namath controversy "put the heat on baseball."

"They really couldn't take a weaker position," he said. "Joe's restaurant was just being used as a bookie joint where these were in a business openly involved in gambling."

Kuhn's move is one of the strongest taken since Commissioner Kennesaw Landis banned for life eight Chicago White Sox players accused in the 1919 scandal, even though they were found innocent in court. Landis also forced two New York club officials to sell their interest in a Havana race track.

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Super sprinter John Carlos says he's talking to the professional football people because "I'll tell you honestly. I'm out for the money."

But before that day comes, the young man who stirred controversy and was sent home after his black-fisted salute in the Olympics is thinking of today and his special goal: Running the world's first 100-yard dash in under nine seconds.

"If I get a good start tomorrow the record's gonna go," the San Jose State star said after "easing off" and winning his 100-yard heat as the NCAA championships opened Thursday.

"Eight-something's gonna come; and you can quote me on that," Carlos said.

Villanova's Erv Hall, who equalled the world record in the 120-yard high hurdles with a 13.2 clocking, was as surprised about his race as Carlos was brash.

"I sure didn't think it was a 13.2," Hall said afterwards. "I had it figured at about 13.4. I didn't feel I was in that good shape! just wanted to look decent."

Villanova, paced by Hall's qualification after an injury-plagued season and a trio of milers who also advanced, loomed as top challenger to favored Kansas and San Jose State after one day of action.

Cubs Attend Wedding Of Manager Leo

CHICAGO (AP) — Chicago Cubs Manager Leo Durocher, whose team is in a five-game losing streak, was married for the fourth time Thursday and promptly declared, "We're off on a winning streak!"

The elegant red-walled Guildhall of the Ambassador West Hotel was the setting for the wedding and reception.

Judge John J. Kelly Jr., the bride's stepbrother who performed the ceremony, prefaced it with the remark: "I'd like to wed my sister to the skipper of the next world champions."

The Cubs are leading the National League's East Division.

The Durochers will postpone a wedding trip to the Orient until after the baseball season ends in October.

Nixon Sees Senators Lose Again In Orioles' 7th Straight

Baltimore's McNally In Two-Hitter

By The Associated Press

Richard Nixon was the people's choice in 1968 but he's not lining up bipartisan support from a certain group of Washington Senators in 1969.

The President showed up at Robert F. Kennedy Stadium with daughter Julie and son-in-law David Eisenhower Thursday night, just in time to see the baseball-playing Senators blow a 2-0 decision to the red-hot Baltimore Orioles.

It was Mr. Nixon's third trip to the ballpark to root, root, root for the home team and the third time he's struck out. That might be party politics, as far as Bob Short, owner of the Senators and treasurer of the Democratic National Committee, is concerned, but it's no way to treat a loyal supporter like Manager Ted Williams, who voted for Mr. Nixon last November.

In other American League activity, the Boston Red Sox blanked Cleveland 3-0, the New York Yankees downed Detroit 5-3, Minnesota flattened California 8-1 and the Chicago White Sox outlasted Seattle 13-10. Kansas City and Oakland were not scheduled.

President Nixon was delayed in leaving for the ballpark by a news conference and didn't get there until the eighth inning. Jim Hannan had blanked the Orioles for seven innings but tired and gave way to Dennis Higgins to start the eighth.

Higgins was in hot water immediately. Don Buford doubled, Paul Blair beat out a bunt and slugging Frank Robinson was advancing to the bat, which was bed enough. Then the President made his entrance.

Home plate umpire John Flaherty held up the game until Mr. Nixon's party was seated. Williams ordered his infield to play back and Robinson bounced into a double play as Buford scored.

That was all Dave McNally needed as he hurled a two-hitter for his 10th victory and the Orioles' seventh in a row. Baltimore pushed across an insurance run in the ninth on Brooks Robinson's double, a wild pitch and Dave Johnson's sacrifice fly.

McNally yielded only leadoff singles to Tim Cullen in the third and Paul Casanova in the ninth.

"The President was really pulling hard for us," reported Short, who sat in the presidential box. "He told me, 'You've got to win this one.' He was really cheering and said he hoped Frank Howard would get up in the ninth. He felt pretty bad that we couldn't win with him here."

Boston's Ray Culp also hurled a two-hitter against Cleveland as he halted a skid which had seen the Red Sox lose five of six games. A two-run homer in the first by Carl Yastrzemski, his 19th helped Culp to his 10th victory.

The right-hander yielded only a pair of pinch singles, by Lou Klimchock in the third and Lee Maye in the fifth. The game was delayed by rain after the second and fourth innings.

Detroit pitcher Earl Wilson's throwing error on Jerry Kenney's high bouncer in the second inning allowed three runs to score as the Yankees tripped the Tigers. Gene Michael and Jake Gibbs, who singled, and Horace Clarke, who walked, all scampered across the plate as Wilson's hurried throw skipped past first baseman Norm Cash.

Stan Bahnsen, 4-9, went the route for New York. Dick McAuliffe homered in the ninth for Detroit's final run.

Minnesota's Dick Woodson, helped by five unearned runs, limited California to three hits and pitched the Twins to within two percentage points of Oakland in the AL West. Jim Fregosi's fifth homer was the only damaging blow off the rookie right-hander.

The White Sox got three runs on a freak play to turn back Seattle. They had just tied the score 1-0 all in the last of the seventh and had the bases loaded with one out. Reliever Bob Locker uncorked a wild pitch as the go-ahead run crossed and when catcher Gerry McNertney's return throw sailed into right field the other two runners also scored.

Carlos May and Bill Melton homered for the Sox while McNertney had a homer and five runs batted in for the Pilots.

Kuhn Acts To Break Up Gambling Ties

Braves, A's Heads Ready To Sell

NEW YORK (AP) — Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn has moved to force a breakup of ties between two major league teams and Las Vegas casinos.

A formal announcement of Kuhn's action was set here today after a month's probe of stock holdings in the gambling business by top officials of the Atlanta Braves and Oakland Athletics.

Delbert W. Coleman, chairman of Parvin-Dohrmann Co. which owns three hotels and casinos, is slated to bow out as a director of the Braves, officials disclosed Thursday.

Three other baseball figures —Braves President William C. Bartholomay, Braves Director John J. Louis Jr., and Oakland owner, Charles O. Finley—will stay in the sport, but are expected to scrap their ties with Parvin-Dohrmann.

Kuhn's move came while pro football is also entangled in a controversy over Commissioner Pete Rozelle's demand that New York Jets quarterback Joe Namath sell a bar allegedly used by gamblers. Namath vowed to retire from football instead.

Baseball traditionally has frowned on any ties with gambling since a World Series scandal in 1919.

Coleman, reached in New York, said the owners had volunteered to end the double duty by three Braves executives on the boards of directors of both the club and Parvin-Dohrmann.

Coleman, while quitting the baseball board, will keep his estimated $18 million in stock in Parvin-Dohrmann, which owns the Stardust, Fremont and Aladdin casinos in Las Vegas. Coleman owns another firm which leases and operates two of the casinos.

Bartholomay and Louis are slated to resign from the Parvin-Dohrmann board, officials said.

Sources in both the business world and the government's stock market watchdog, the Securities and Exchange Commission, said Finley, Bartholomay and Louis were expected to have to sell their Parvin-Dohrmann stock.

Finley, reached in Chicago, said, "I have no comment on anything."

Bartholomay could not be reached. Louis was reported on vacation in London.

Bartholomay and Louis own only 2,000 shares each. Finley bought 30,000 shares valued at $2.7 million in April. Coleman controls 207,000 shares.

Parvin-Dohrmann is the same firm that figured in the controversy over Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas' former $12,000-a- year post as president of a foundation linked by stock to casinos.

Kuhn began his probe of the baseball involvement after The Associated Press made public the stock ties of the Braces and Athletics owners a month ago.

A source in the SEC, which has been investigating Parvin-Dohrmann, said the Namath controversy "put the heat on baseball."

"They really couldn't take a weaker position," he said. "Joe's restaurant was just being used as a bookie joint where these were in a business openly involved in gambling."

Kuhn's move is one of the strongest taken since Commissioner Kennesaw Landis banned for life eight Chicago White Sox players accused in the 1919 scandal, even though they were found innocent in court. Landis also forced two New York club officials to sell their interest in a Havana race track.

Cubs Attend Wedding Of Manager Leo

CHICAGO (AP) — Chicago Cubs Manager Leo Durocher, whose team is in a five-game losing streak, was married for the fourth time Thursday and promptly declared, "We're off on a winning streak!"

The doughty Durocher, 62, was all affability as he and his bride, Lynne Walker Goldblatt, 40, greeted some 200 persons—including most of the Cubs team —following a brief ceremony.

The elegant red-walled Guildhall of the Ambassador West Hotel was the setting for the wedding and reception.

Judge John J. Kelly Jr., the bride's stepbrother who performed the ceremony, prefaced it with the remark: "I'd like to wed my sister to the skipper of the next world champions."

The Cubs are leading the National League's East Division.

The Durochers will postpone a wedding trip to the Orient until after the baseball season ends in October.

President Of Company Testifies

Bank Says Interest Hike Cut Dangers To Economy

WASHINGTON (AP) — The bank that started the climb in prime interest rates to a historic high told Congress today its acion reduced rather than increased dangers to the economy.

Alfred Brittain III, president of Bankers Trust Co. of New York, testified that "we have prevented our lending capacity from being overrun and have made sure that funds will remain available for the essential needs, above all, of our small businesses and other customers who cannot finance themselves in the securities market."

Bankers Trust was the first to announce an increase June 9 from 7½ to 8½ per cent in the prime rate. Banks across the country quickly followed.

In testimony prepared for the House Banking Committee, Brittain said the bank will continue to finance residential mortgages at 7½ per cent and raise rates to small business borrowers less than the 1 per cent jump in the prime rate charged its biggest and best customers.

The committee opened an investigation of the prime rate increase Thursdav with another confrontation between Chairman Wright Patman, D-Tex., and Secretary of the Treasury David M. Kennedy.

Patman again accused the secretary of conflicts of interest because of continued financial ties with Continental Illinois National Bank of Chicago, which Kennedy formerly headed.

Kennedy denied the charges, telling newsmen afterward he arranged his financial affairs in accordance with recommendations of the Senate Finance Committee and is convinced he has no legal or moral conflict.

Kennedy said he had talked with bankers, corporation executives and labor groups about the general need to contain inflation. But, he continued, "I have not tried to say 'thou shalt not increase this rate.' I have no right to do his . . . just to get up on a high pulpit as though I were God and say 'thou shalt not.'"

Pursuing his contention the administration should have taken steps in retaliation for the interest rate increase, Patman said: "What about the President? Can he do something?"

"I suspect you'll have to ask him . . . You did, you wrote his a letter," Kennedy said, referring to a message Patman sent President Nixon urging strong steps to force the banks to reduce the intrest rates.

"I received no reply from him," Patman said. "I would think you are closer to him than I am."

"I would hope I am . . .," Kennedy said, drawing laughter from the packed committee hearing room.

President Nixon in his Thursday night news conference indicated he would not take any of the steps which Patman had urged. Nixon said anti-inflation measures already taken by his administration should begin to have effect within two to three months.

"If our projection proves to be wrong, then we will have to look to other courses of action, because we cannot allow prices to continue to go up, interest to go up . . .," Nixon said.

Kennedy in his testimony before the committee also rejected an idea put forward by Patman that a national usury law might be needed.

"I don't think an artificial or forced interest rate is the answer to the problem," Kennedy said.

The administration, Kennedy said, will rely on its broad anti-inflation program—with heavy emphasis on extending the 10 per cent income tax surcharge —to blunt the thrust of inflation. Once inflation is checked, he said, interest rates will tend downward.

He opposed suggestions for withdrawing government deposits from banks that increase interest and for revival of the depression era Reconstruction Finance Corporation to make government loans to borrowers turned down by banks.

Kennedy said, however, he does not believe there was a conspiracy of bankers to raise the interest rate. While he said he did not endorse the present rate, he said it was brought about by strong demand for credit, the impact of both actual inflation and more inflation expected and heavy reliance on tight money policies.

This was reinforced by Brittain's testimony today that demands for loans have been steadily increasing and Bankers Trust in the past six months rejected more than one-half billion dollars in applications, mostly by large customers. Securities brokers and dealers especialy, he said, have been trying to borrow more.

President Of Company Testifies

Bank Says Interest Hike Cut Dangers To Economy

WASHINGTON (AP) — The bank that started the climb in prime interest rates to a historic high told Congress today its acion reduced rather than increased dangers to the economy.

Alfred Brittain III, president of Bankers Trust Co. of New York, testified that "we have prevented our lending capacity from being overrun and have made sure that funds will remain available for the essential needs, above all, of our small businesses and other customers who cannot finance themselves in the securities market."

Bankers Trust was the first to announce an increase June 9 from 7½ to 8½ per cent in the prime rate. Banks across the country quickly followed.

In testimony prepared for the House Banking Committee, Brittain said the bank will continue to finance residential mortgages at 7½ per cent and raise rates to small business borrowers less than the 1 per cent jump in the prime rate charged its biggest and best customers.

The committee opened an investigation of the prime rate increase Thursday with another confrontation between Chairman Wright Patman, D-Tex., and Secretary of the Treasury David M. Kennedy.

Patman again accused the secretary of conflicts of interest because of continued financial ties with Continental Illinois National Bank of Chicago, which Kennedy formerly headed.

Kennedy denied the charges, telling newsmen afterward he arranged his financial affairs in accordance with recommendations of the Senate Finance Committee and is convinced he has no legal or moral conflict.

Kennedy said he had talked with bankers, corporation executives and labor groups about the general need to contain inflation. But, he continued, "I have not tried to say 'thou shalt not increase this rate.' I have no right to do his . . . just to get up on a high pulpit as though I were God and say 'thou shalt not.'"

Pursuing his contention the administration should have taken steps in retaliation for the interest rate increase, Patman said: "What about the President? Can he do something?"

"I suspect you'll have to ask him . . . You did, you wrote his a letter," Kennedy said, referring to a message Patman sent President Nixon urging strong steps to force the banks to reduce the intrest rates.

"I received no reply from him," Patman said. "I would think you are closer to him than I am."

"I would hope I am . . .," Kennedy said, drawing laughter from the packed committee hearing room.

President Nixon in his Thursday night news conference indicated he would not take any of the steps which Patman had urged. Nixon said anti-inflation measures already taken by his administration should begin to have effect within two to three months.

"If our projection proves to be wrong, then we will have to look to other courses of action, because we cannot allow prices to continue to go up, interest to go up . . .," Nixon said.

Kennedy in his testimony before the committee also rejected an idea put forward by Patman that a national usury law might be needed.

"I don't think an artificial or forced interest rate is the answer to the problem," Kennedy said.

The administration, Kennedy said, will rely on its broad anti-inflation program—with heavy emphasis on extending the 10 per cent income tax surcharge —to blunt the thrust of inflation. Once inflation is checked, he said, interest rates will tend downward.

He opposed suggestions for withdrawing government deposits from banks that increase interest and for revival of the depression era Reconstruction Finance Corporation to make government loans to borrowers turned down by banks.

Kennedy said, however, he does not believe there was a conspiracy of bankers to raise the interest rate. While he said he did not endorse the present rate, he said it was brought about by strong demand for credit, the impact of both actual inflation and more inflation expected and heavy reliance on tight money policies.

This was reinforced by Brittain's testimony today that demands for loans have been steadily increasing and Bankers Trust in the past six months rejected more than one-half billion dollars in applications, mostly by large customers. Securities brokers and dealers especialy, he said, have been trying to borrow more.

Junior Editors Quiz on BLUSHING

QUESTION: Why does a person blush when he is embarrassed?

ANSWER: Our bodies have wonderful built-in mechanisms which help us meet sudden emergencies, often without our knowing that they are acting. In a sudden dangerous situation, for example, a material called epinephrine is suddenly pumped into our blood stream. This gives us extra strength either to meet the emergency or to run rapidly away from it. Mary, in our picture, is not in a dangerous situation, yet she does feel embarrassed. She started to answer the teacher's question boldly, but as she went on, found that she just didn't have the facts. Our blood circulates in the skin through minute tubes called capillaries, and there are little nerves which can pull them wide apart to let more blood through or pull them together, giving less blood. This is a case where Mary needs all the stimulation the blood can give her. The little capillaries widen and the blood pours through her cheeks, causing them to look red. She is blushing, but in spite of this gallant effort by her blood stream, poor Mary just hasn't got the answer.

(David Radford of Pontiac, Mich., wins a prize for this question. You can win $10 cash plus AP's handsome World Yearbook if your question, mailed on a postcard to Junior Editors in care of this newspaper, is selected for a prize.)

Nonviolence Challenges Western Writers

"One thing about this edict against violence on television," said Leif Erickson. "It's giving us the best scripts we've ever had.

Cecil Smith

"I suppose it's because it's a real challenge to the writer. No longer can he resolve a situation with a gun fight or banging somebody over the head.

"He has to invent an honest and plausible solution out of characterization and the basic elements of drama.

"I DON'T KNOW how the public will go for them," added Erickson, "but for an actor these scripts are much more interesting to play — scenes and characters are more fully developed, there is a more honest sense of reality."

More than most TV actors, the tall, brawny star of "High Chaparral" knows a good script when he sees one. He's played the best — from William Shakespeare to Clifford Odets.

He was in Max Reinhardt's legendary production of "A Midsummer Night's Dream" in the Hollywood Bowl; he starred with the Group Theater during its halcyon days on Broadway in such plays as Odets' "Rocket to the Moon" and Irwin Shaw's "The Gentle People."

He was Deborah Kerr's costar in Robert Anderson's "Tea and Sympathy," both on Broadway and in the movie.

He made movies for Paramount in the days when they were turned out faster than television is made today, notably the series of films from Zane Grey's novels.

WHAT HE IS DOING now he says he enjoys more than anything he ever has done. He has no illusions about the product ("these are living comic strips") but: "I like to work hard — I'd rather be working than not working. I like the location shooting out in the open (near Tucson); I like the recognition, the fame — and I like the money."

Erickson had flown home from Tucson after a month of filming shows for next season to spend a few days on his boat. He's one of those men who loves both the sea and the desert, finding great similarity between the two.

Sun-bronzed to a mahogany sheen, the wiry gray hair twisted like the ashen desert ironwood, the 57-year-old actor has had a career that spans the range of show business.

HE WAS Atrombonist in the orchestra of Olson and Johnson's "Hellzapoppin"; he sang with Ted Fiorito's band (it was Fiorito who changed his name from Harry Anderson to the more showy Leif Erickson); he's starred in dramas, comedies, musical comedies and operettas on the stage; his movies range from "Conquest" with Greta Garbo to "Nothing but the Truth" with Bob Hope.

Because "High Chaparral" is a kind of blood brother to "Bonanza" (David Dortort created and produces both for NBC), I wouldn't think violence would be a major concern, but Erickson says it is. Furthermore, TV's overreaction gets a little silly.

"NO HORSEFALLS," said Erickson. "If a guy is thrown by a horse, we must show him get up and walk away. When you draw a pistol, you don't point it, you hold it sideways. If anybody's shot, it's by accident.

"We have a scene in one show in which Victoria (Linda Cristal) unties the cords holding a heavy chandelier to let it fall on some bandits. We can't show her untying it — the chandelier has to fall by accident."

But Erickson has no complaints. As a professional who has ranged the wide world of show business, he is happy to be given better scripts, better scenes to play.

He finds his life as an actor so satisfyng that he has encouraged his son, William, 22, to follow the Thespian trade. William is just back from a year with the Green Berets in Vietnam where the violence that happened was not by accident.

Shafer Says In The Dark On New Taxes

HARRISBURG (AP) — Gov. Shafer says he is now as much in the dark as John Q. Public about what kind of new taxes Pennsylvania will get during the next fiscal year, but indicated it would probably be "a hodgepodge."

Shafer, obviously miffed by what he called the General Assembly's "dilly-dallying" over his proposed $2.5 billion budget, said it was now up to the legislature to come up with some concrete proposals.

The governor had proposed the state's first personal income tax to raise about $350 million in new taxes and hiking business taxes by some $150 million to meet his proposed increase over the current $2 billion budget.

"Both Democrats and Republicans say they want a hodgepodge of taxes," instead of an income tax, Shafer told a regularly scheduled news conference Thursday.

Asked about the Democratic leaders' tax plans, Shafer said, "All I know is what I read in the morning papers."

If reports were true, however, Shafer said he would oppose massive new business taxes as proposed by the Democrats if they threatened his ideal of a 70-30 ratio between consumer and business taxes.

Balloon Goes Up In Fire, That Is, And Burns Youth

A 16-year-old Glenmoor youth was admitted to City Hospital Thursday with burns suffered when he touched a cigarette lighter to a toy balloon that was filled with flammable gas, police reported.

Mike Mills, son of Kenneth Mills of MC 22, Lisbon St., suffered first- and second - degree burns of the face, neck and right hand, officers said. He was listed as "satisfactory" today.

Mike told officers he and two friends, Mark and Wayne Poole, were standing in front of the high school when Mark handed him a balloon and asked if he could break it.

Mike said he tried unsuccessfully to break the balloon with his hand. Then, he said, he touched the flame from his cigarette lighter to the balloon and it blew up in his face. An unidentified teacher took the youth to the hospital.

'Viable Candidates' Seen Democrats Need

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) — Ohio Democrats urgently need "viable candidates at all levels," according to Frazier Reams Jr., the party's unsuccessful candidate for governor three years ago.

Reams, addressing the opening session of the University of Toledo's Robert A. Taft Institute of Government here Thursday, said the party also needs "financial support in order to field these candidates."

McKernan Earns Master's Degree

Richard Lee McKernan, son of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh McKernan Jr. of Dresden Ave., received his master of arts degree from Case Western Reserve University at Cleveland during commencement this month.

McKernan is a physical education teacher at a Lakewood school and also athletic director for the entire Lakewood area schools. He has taught school for 10 years, graduating from East Liverpool High School in 1955 and from Baldwin-Wallace in 1959.

He is married, has one child and lives in Cleveland.

Buckeye Boy's State Conducts Graduation Rites

ATHENS, Ohio (AP) — Their ears still ringing from political hoopla and legislative pronouncements, the 1.370 citizens of Buckeye Boys' State participated today in concluding graduation ceremonies.

A highlight of the ceremonies was to be the naming of two of the high school seniors as delegates to Boys' Nation in Washington next month.

Today's program wound up the 32nd American Legion-sponsored School-in-democracy, during which the boys spent 10 days creating a mythical state and adopting laws to govern it.

Perhaps the most significant legislative action, since participants all are teen-agers, was passage of a bill and referendum approval of a constitutional amendment for lowering the voting age to 19.

The measure was one of more than 100 pieces of legislation acted upon by the Federalist and Nationalist party members of the mock general assembly

Nonviolence Challenges Western Writers

"One thing about this edict against violence on television," said Leif Erickson. "It's giving us the best scripts we've ever had.

"I suppose it's because it's a real challenge to the writer. No longer can he resolve a situation with a gun fight or hanging somebody over the head. "He has to invent an honest and plausible solution out of characterization and the basic elements of drama.

"I DON'T KNOW how the public will go for them," added Erickson, "but for an actor these scripts are much more interesting to play — scenes and characters are more fully developed, there is a more honest sense of reality."

More than most TV actors, the tall, brawny star of "High Chaparral" knows a good script when he sees one. He's played the best — from William Shakespeare to Clifford Odets.

He was in Max Reinhardt's legendary production of "A Midsummer Night's Dream" in the Hollywood Bowl; he starred with the Group Theater during its halcyon days on Broadway in such plays as Odets' "Rocket to the Moon" and Irwin Shaw's "The Gentle People."

He was Deborah Kerr's costar in Robert Anderson's "Tea and Sympathy," both on Broadway and in the movie.

He made movies for Paramount in the days when they were turned out faster than television is made today, notably the series of films from Zane Grey's novels.

WHAT HE IS DOING now he says he enjoys more than anything he ever has done. He has no illusions about the product ("these are living comic strips") but: "I like to work hard — I'd rather be working than not working. I like the location shooting out in the open (near Tucson); I like the recognition, the fame — and I like the money."

Erickson had flown home from Tucson after a month of filming shows for next season to spend a few days on his boat. He's one of those men who loves both the sea and the desert, finding great similarity between the two.

Sun-bronzed to a mahogany sheen, the wiry gray hair twisted like the ashen desert ironwood, the 57-year-old actor has had a career that spans the range of show business.

HE WAS Atrombonist in the orchestra of Olson and Johnson's "Hellzapoppin"; he sang with Ted Fiorito's band (it was Fiorito who changed his name from Harry Anderson to the more showy Leif Erickson); he's starred in dramas, comedies, musical comedies and operettas on the stage; his movies range from "Conquest" with Greta Garbo to "Nothing but the Truth" with Bob Hope.

Because "High Chaparral" is a kind of blood brother to "Bonanza" (David Dortort created and produces both for NBC), I wouldn't think violence would be a major concern, but Erickson says it is. Furthermore, TV's overreaction gets a little silly.

"NO HORSEFALLS," said Erickson. "If a guy is thrown by a horse, we must show him get up and walk away. When you draw a pistol, you don't point it, you hold it sideways. If anybody's shot, it's by accident.

"We have a scene in one show in which Victoria (Linda Cristal) unties the cords holding a heavy chandelier to let it fall on some bandits. We can't show her untying it — the chandelier has to fall by accident."

But Erickson has no complaints. As a professional who has ranged the wide world of show business, he is happy to be given better scripts, better scenes to play.

He finds his life as an actor so satisfyng that he has encouraged his son, William, 22, to follow the Thespian trade. William is just back from a year with the Green Berets in Vietnam where the violence that happened was not by accident.

Balloon Goes Up In Fire, That Is, And Burns Youth

A 16-year-old Glenmoor youth was admitted to City Hospital Thursday with burns suffered when he touched a cigarette lighter to a toy balloon that was filled with flammable gas, police reported.

Mike Mills, son of Kenneth Mills of MC 22, Lisbon St., suffered first- and second - degree burns of the face, neck and right hand, officers said. He was listed as "satisfactory" today.

Mike told officers he and two friends, Mark and Wayne Poole, were standing in front of the high school when Mark handed him a balloon and asked if he could break it.

Mike said he tried unsuccessfully to break the balloon with his hand. Then, he said, he touched the flame from his cigarette lighter to the balloon and it blew up in his face. An unidentified teacher took the youth to the hospital.

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) — Ohio Democrats urgently need "viable candidates at all levels," according to Frazier Reams Jr., the party's unsuccessful candidate for governor three years ago.

Shafer Says In The Dark On New Taxes

HARRISBURG (AP) — Gov. Shafer says he is now as much in the dark as John Q. Public about what kind of new taxes Pennsylvania will get during the next fiscal year, but indicated it would probably be "a hodgepodge."

Shafer, obviously miffed by what he called the General Assembly's "dilly-dallying" over his proposed $2.5 billion budget, said it was now up to the legislature to come up with some concrete proposals.

The governor had proposed the state's first personal income tax to raise about $350 million in new taxes and hiking business taxes by some $150 million to meet his proposed increase over the current $2 billion budget.

"Both Democrats and Republicans say they want a hodgepodge of taxes," instead of an income tax, Shafer told a regularly scheduled news conference Thursday.

Asked about the Democratic leaders' tax plans, Shafer said, "All I know is what I read in the morning papers."

If reports were true, however, Shafer said he would oppose massive new business taxes as proposed by the Democrats if they threatened his ideal of a 70-30 ratio between consumer and business taxes.

Buckeye Boy's State Conducts Graduation Rites

ATHENS, Ohio (AP) — Their ears still ringing from political hoopla and legislative pronouncements, the 1,370 citizens of Buckeye Boys' State participated today in concluding graduation ceremonies.

A highlight of the ceremonies was to be the naming of two of the high school seniors as delegates to Boys' Nation in Washington next month.

Today's program wound up the 32nd American Legion-sponsored School-in-democracy, during which the boys spent 10 days creating a mythical state and adopting laws to govern it.

Perhaps the most significant legislative action, since participants all are teen-agers, was passage of a bill and referendum approval of a constitutional amendment for lowering the voting age to 19.

The measure was one of more than 100 pieces of legislation acted upon by the Federalist and Nationalist party members of the mock general assembly
